

REMARKS

Applicants thank Examiner Horlick for conducting a very useful telephonic interview on June 12, 2007, and for suggesting amendments that would place the claims in condition for allowance. Applicants have taken these suggestions into account in amending the claims.

I. The sole grounds of rejection remaining in the present application are three rejections under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph. Applicants disagree with those rejections for the following reasons:

1. the term "if the target comprises a mismatch." Applicants do not understand why this term is alleged to be vague and indefinite. The claimed method is for detecting a mismatch in a test double stranded nucleic acid target. The claimed method will only detect a mismatch if the target comprises a mismatch. Nevertheless, in the interest of expediting prosecution, claims 1, 7, 14 and 28 have been amended to delete the recitation, "if the target comprises a mismatch." The amendments are fully supported in the specification, do not add new matter, and do not narrow the scope of the claims.

2. the term "predominant site." The meaning of "predominant" is clear to one of skill in the art. For example, the Random House Dictionary indicates that one definition for this term is "prevailing, preponderant" (copy of dictionary page attached). The Merriam-Webster On-Line Dictionary indicates that one definition of prevalent is "most frequent or common" (copy of dictionary page attached). Transposition at a predominant site, in a method of the invention, results in the production of a "predominant" band on a separating gel. Typical predominant bands are show in Figure 1B. As this figure is described in the specification (e.g. on page 11, lines 5-7), "When the target DNA contained a single base pair mismatch, insertions to the normal duplex sites were suppressed and nearly 90 % of the strand transfer products were either 91 nt- or 92 nt-long (Fig. 1B, lane 3)." Other predominant bands are shown in Figure 1C, lanes 3 and 4. As described in the Brief Description of this figure, "the predominant bands in lane 3 and 4 correspond to 35 and 36 nt, respectively." Applicants do not see a need to place a quantitative value on "predominant."

3. the term "under effective conditions." Conditions that are effective for a Mu-end nucleic acid to transpose into a target at about the site of a mismatch, if the target comprises a mismatch, can be determined empirically. In view of the disclosure in the present application of the claimed method, it would not require undue experimentation for a skilled worker to optimize such reaction conditions. Typical such conditions are described in the specification, e.g. on page 23, line 19-26 and in the Savilahti et al reference mentioned therein.

Applicants disagree with the suggestion by Examiner Horlick in the telephonic interview of June 12, 2007 that certain other language in the claims was unclear. Nevertheless, minor amendments have been made to the claims as suggested by Examiner Horlick. The amendments are fully supported in the specification, do not add new matter, and do not narrow the scope of the claims.

II. Rejoinder

Applicants once again request that claim 32 (from Group II, directed to an in vitro reaction mixture present during the performance of the claimed method) and claims 33-35 (Group III, directed to a kit used for performing the method) be rejoined to claims 1-31, once these claims have been deemed allowable, pursuant to the In re Ochiai, 37 USPQ 2d 1127 (Fed. Cir. 1995) and In re Brouwer, 37 USPQ2d 1663 (Fed. Cir. 1996) decisions, and MPEP 821.04. The in vitro reaction mixture of claim 32 has presumably already been searched during the search of claims 1-31, as have the components of the kit of claims 1-31. Therefore, no additional search needs to be performed, so there is no search burden upon the Examiner. The scope of claims 32-35 is not greater than the scope of claims 1-31.

In view of the preceding arguments and amendments, it is believed that the application is in condition for allowance, which action is respectfully requested.

No fee is believed to be due with this response. However, the Commissioner is hereby authorized to charge any fees association with this response or credit any overpayment to Deposit Account No. 22-0261, citing Docket No. 31978-201641.

Respectfully submitted,

To PREDICT is usually to foretell with precision of calculation, knowledge, or shrewd inference from facts or experience: Astronomers can predict an eclipse; it may, however, be used quite lightly: I predict she'll be a success at the party. PROPHESY may have the solemn meaning of predicting future events by the aid of divine or supernatural inspiration: The sibyl prophesied victory; this verb, too, may be used loosely: I prophesy he'll be back in the old job. To FORESEE refers specifically not to the uttering of predictions but to the mental act of seeing ahead; there is often (but not always) a practical implication of preparing for what will happen: He could foresee their objections. FORECAST has much the same meaning as FORESEE, except that conjecture rather than real insight or knowledge may be involved, and that such conjecture is publicly announced. It has the same meaning as FORESEE when referring to the weather: Rain and snow are forecast for tonight.
